“Hey, is the school board going to hire a new superintendent tonight? All the agenda says is ‘Personnel Matters.’”

Agendas must give reasonable notice to the public of what issues will be dealt with or discussed - even if voting is not expected until a later meeting. Generic descriptions are insufficient. For example, if a board of education is going to discuss hiring a new superintendent, an appropriate agenda item would be “Hiring the new county superintendent.” See OMAOs 2001-13, 2001-23, 2001-26, 2002-05, 2004-10, 2004-13, 2006-14. Other examples are below:

New Advisory Opinions

2023-08 A City Sanitary Board may allow an employee or his parents to participate in the Board's biosolids program and may upgrade a biosolids storage area on the employee's parents' property if the Board determines that the upgrade will provide an overriding public benefit.

2023-09 A state college employee may serve as a Legislator subject to the other restrictions in the Act. The Legislator need not recuse himself from voting on legislation or appropriations that benefit his public employer. Partially overrules Advisory Opinions 2012-19 and 2012-23. See also Article 6, Section 13, of the West Virginia Constitution.

2023-10 City officials may solicit donations for the City's free, outdoor concert series held in its amphitheater via GoFundMe or similar crowdsourced funding. The officials must follow the manner of solicitation limitations found in W. Va. Code R. §158-7-6 and 7 and should seek advice from an accountant or the Auditor's Office about rules governing the receipt of electronic donations through these types of computer applications.

2023-11 A Prosecutor may employ spouses as assistant prosecutors as long as the Act's nepotism provision and the applicable Legislative Rule are followed. Assistant prosecuting attorneys do not per se have any voice, influence, or control over the employment contracts of the other assistant prosecutors in the prosecutor's office.

2023-12 A County Commissioner may be employed by a nonprofit organization to which the Commission appropriated funds if they are less than seven percent of the nonprofit's fiscal year revenues and are not used to pay his salary.
